Public Procurement is a discipline in constant change and evolution, in particular due to the adoption of the new sect of directives approved in March 2014. As a consequence, at the moment there are not text books that have been fully-updated information.

In the light of the above, we are providing you with some suggested readings that complement, update and cover topics that are discussed in our lectures and the mandatory readings. These sources could be helpful for you whenever preparing for the final exam or the written assignment. We have provided with links to some of them while the others can be found by using the physical and/or electronic resources of the Faculty’s Library.
